JILLIAN GOTT
ART TEACHER, DONOVAN ES

Jillian Gott, 23 years old, is currently working on her Masters in Art Education at Boston University. She obtained her undergraduate degree from Towson University in Baltimore, MD where she was a defenseman on their women's ice hockey team. Just about every day after school Ms. Gott could be found at the local Crossfit gym or playing pickup hockey. "The Donovan is my first real teaching job, but during high school and college I ran several day camps that ranged from cupcake camp to superhero camp," said Ms. Gott. She loves teaching at the Donovan where there's truly never a dull moment. "There was a day when a first-grade student forgot about a raw egg in his backpack. Sometimes I can't believe my job is real. I am definitely having way too much fun downstairs in room 112," said Ms. Gott. On behalf of the RPS district, thank you, Ms. Gott, for sharing your love for teaching with our students. All the best with your studies.

SEAN VICKREY
SPECIAL EDUCATION TEACHER, RCMS

Sean Vickrey attended Roger Williams University (RWU) in Bristol, Rhode Island, where he studied History and English Literature and was a member of the nationally ranked wrestling team. Mr. Vickrey has been teaching for 18 years. The first 5 years he taught Social Studies in Fall River, MA. For the last 13 years he has been serving as a Special Education teacher for Randolph Public Schools. Mr. Vickrey became a teacher because he believes that every student should have the support they need to achieve their full potential. Being dyslexic, in middle school he was told he would never be able to read well enough to go to college. Well, Mr. Vickrey went to college anyway and has worked hard to model the importance of education and resiliency to his students. Thank you, Mr. Vickrey, for all that you do for our students, and for being a great role model.
