GEOFF HIGGINS
ELL TEACHER, DONOVAN ES

Geoff Higgins has the distinct privilege of working with Donovan's English Language Learner student population. He began teaching in the Randolph Public Schools System as a long-term maternity substitute at Randolph High School. The teachers and students Mr. Higgins worked with taught him a lot. Prior to teaching, Mr. Higgins was a software consultant for ten years before coming to Randolph. He received ELL training at Cambridge College and obtained his undergraduate degree from Ursinus College in Pennsylvania. Mr. Higgins and his wife, Peggy, has one son, Pat, who works in Philadelphia and lives there with his wife, Jenna. He is a fanatic baseball fan who watches games on Apple TV. He volunteers his free time at MCI-Framingham, which is the only women's correctional center in MA. He is humbled to be able to serve a vulnerable population. He is also grateful to work with wonderful faculty and staff at the Donovan ES. They teach him something new every day, eagerly helping our students to be the best they can be in every way, so they can succeed at whatever they dream to be. Thank you, Mr. Higgins, for your dedication to our students at the Donovan ES.

DANA SAUNDERS
ENGLISH TEACHER
RANDOLPH HIGH SCHOOL

Ms. Saunders is a true and caring educator at Randolph High School. She goes above and beyond what is expected of her for both the students and staff. Her class has the feel of a college-level English class because of her style, comfortability with the subject, and how she addresses content with the students.

The selected approaches Ms. Saunders uses to teach her students are both engaging and rigorous for the students as she continues to push them to new academic levels.

Randolph High School is truly fortunate to have Ms. Saunders as part of their faculty, and the Randolph Public Schools district is appreciative of all that she does for our students.

Thank you, Ms. Saunders.
